

Website Terms of use

The website, including any information and photographs have all been provided in good faith. The information has been provided to help you decide whether you would like to take up the services of Organised and Proud.

Organised and Proud are open to constructive feedback about any required changes to the website to benefit you as a potential client.

You may download individual sections of the website for the purpose of deciding whether to take up the services of Organised and Proud or to tell other people about our services.

Organised and Proud will not be liable for any losses caused by a distributed virus, worm, or any other harmful material that may infect your computer equipment, computer programmes or data due to the use of the Organised and Proud website.

Organised and Proud have the right to amend and update the website at any time. This may include wording, photos, the booking form, and cost of services. The testimonials will be provided with the exact wording provided by the client. The only change that would be made is the spelling of my name to Vicki.

Each time you use this website, a condition of use is that you comply with the above Website Terms of Use.